Borrowers assume total responsibility for any material borrowed from the Library, being held personally accountable for its loss or damage. Should a book be damaged or lost when it is checked out, it is the responsibility of the borrower (or their designated representative who picked up the book) to reimburse the Scientific Library for its replacement cost. In the event that the borrower terminates employment at NCI-F and said costs have not been recovered, the funds will be withheld from the final paycheck.

The Scientific Library subscribes to certain electronic titles according to license terms that permit use by NCI-F's authorized users for educational and scholarly/research purposes, as allowed by use of the patron barcode. Patrons who request a barcode assume responsibility for respecting the copyright of owners as well as any user restrictions that may be identified as they visit these resources. NCI-F users are advised to read the Notice of Copyright/Use Restrictions for Electronic Resources Purchased by the NCI-F Scientific Library, posted on the Library's web site, on the Online Journals page. The Library reserves the right to terminate off-site use of Library online resources should any unauthorized use be discovered including sharing of privileges with non-authorized individuals.

Your signature on this form serves as acceptance of these terms of use.
